

Online technology for improving mental wellbeing in the workplace

Available exclusively from Stanley, the Mindcheck online survey tool enables employers to monitor the emotional health of employees continuously, for the purpose of improving individual and company wellbeing.

Using a series of non-intrusive questions designed by mental health professionals, Mindcheck can quickly identify vulnerable team members who may be suffering from anxiety, stress or other mental health concerns.

Confidential insights enable company managers to intervene early and support at-risk employees appropriately, in a discreet and empathetic manner.
