

Modjoul SmartBelt >

A total ecosystem for measuring safety

Modjoul, available from Stanley, is an ecosystem of cutting-edge technologies and data intelligence to make your workplace safer and more efficient, resulting in healthier employees and stronger companies.

The platform combines industry-leading data analysis with sensors, radio frequency identification [RFID], and innovative SmartBelt wearable devices to create safer places of work.

The small, lightweight device is worn like a belt, providing workers with real-time haptic feedback on unsafe movements and ultimately improving worker safety and wellbeing. The modular design allows the devices to be worn as a belt or clip.

Scoring is given from data on bending and twisting, including angle and duration, providing employers with a comprehensive and accurate picture of back injury risk in the workplace.

Leverage state of the art, easy-to-use technology to prevent injury in your business.

Technology that keeps workers safe

1

Data collected in the platform is reviewed by employees and management.

2

New training and processes are implemented from the data collected.

3

The SmartBelt technology informs users of unsafe movements and activities in realtime.
